Shirdi Sai Baba Temple

One of the best religious places in Maharashtra is the shrine and temple of Shirdi Sai Baba. This shrine is that of the holy saint Sai Baba, who is lovingly called Shirdi ke Sai Baba. His blessings helped the poor and needy people. The temple is so famous that 25000 devotees visit it every day and during religious occasions this number goes up to 1,00,000 per day. The temple has the marble shrine of Sai Baba. The temple complex has several other temples like Khandoba Temple, Samadhi Mandir, Dwarkamai, and Lendi Gardens among others. All these places are very closely linked to the life of the great saint. There are canteens, accommodation facilities, book stalls, Prasad counters, etc. in the temple.

Dwarkamai

Dwarkamai is very closely related to Shirdi Sai Baba. This used to be an old mosque and it was in ruins. Shirdi Sai Baba converted it into a religious place of worship and sat there daily to help the poor people. Shirdi Sai Baba started the dhuni or ceremonial fire in Dwarkamai. The ashes of this fire are said to have healing properties. You can visit the stone bench here where the holy saint took his bath. Every Thursday a big procession takes place and a palanquin with Baba's idol is taken out from Samadhi Mandir to Dwarkamai. Free meals are offered daily to visitors and people of all castes are welcome to pray and have darshan.

Chavadi

The idol is a Swayambhu Shanishwara idol. The remarkable thing about this temple is that it has no doors, walls, or buildings, and is an open-air temple. There is a trishul and a statue of Nandi near the black stone idol. This temple has immense importance in Maharashtra. Every day around 30000 to 50000 visitors visit the temple.
